HOW GIRLS MAY LEAD YOUNG MEN INTO TROUBLE.

MEN INTO TROUBLE.

A very preity young girl, about 17 years of age, with rosy cheeks and light hair, was standing at the corner of Holt and Church streets a few afternoons since, while just opposite her, on the other side of the street, stood a young man, with a glaring red tie, patent leather shoes, tight trousers, his hair parted in the middle and pasted down with soap. From down the street came a companion of this young man, who, on approaching, was met with this interrogation:

"See that girl over there; she has seemed a very pretty young girl, about 17 men in the bodies. He then the table to lind the bodies are under the bodies are under the bodies. The clevator is perhaps the largest in the city, and the negro hands put on an exceptionally heavy load of oats. While these were being unleaded on the second floor the grip on the shaft gave way and the four negroes and the oats were precipitated to the ground floor. The negroes were all badly hurt. They are E. W. Rand, William Hall, Fred Watson and Maurice Bector. The two latter are little boys. After the accident they were all carried to the police station in the patrel wagon.

Watson is perhaps the most dangerously hurt. He is injured internally. He, with Rand and Bector, was carried from the police station to No. 12 Newton street, their home.
